ТНЕ PREFACE.

Efore I present the Reader, with the following Dictionary of the Beggers and Gypfies Cant, I think it not amils to premife a few Words concerning the Beggers and Gypfies themfelves, by way of an Historical Account, of the Antiquity of the one, and the Univerfality of the other.

It makes not a little for the Honour of the Beggers, that their Original according to fome Accounts, is no lefs Ancient than that of Christianity anity it felf; for in the Opinion of Charron, as the Slaves went off, the Beggers came in their Place. So much at least is granted, That the Fems who allow'd of Slaves, had no Beggers. What shall we fay, but that if it be true, that the Emanci. pating or Freeing of Slaves was indeed the making of Beggers; it follows that Christianity which is daily employed in Redeeming Slaves from the Turks, Ranfom'd no lefs than all at once from Pogan Slavery at first, at no dearer a Rate, than the Rent-charge of maintaining the Beggers, as the Price and Purchace of our Freedoms.

As for the Antiquity of the Englifb Beggers, it may be observed, That the first Statute which makes Provifion for the Parish-Poor, is no older than Queen Elizabeth; from which it may be fairly Collected, That they

they entred with us upon the Diffolution of the Abbeys, as with them abroad, upon the Delivery of the Slaves.

For the Gypfies, they and the Foul Difease have alike the Fate to run through a Geography of Names, and to be made free of as many Countries, as almost there are Languages to call them Names in; for as the French call the Pox, the Italian Difease, they again give it to the Spaniards, as these to the French; fo the French call the Gypfies Boemie, or Bobemians, belike, because they made their first Appearance in Bohemia of any Part of Europe; the Italians Name them Zingari or Saracens, the Spaniards hanos as we Egyptians; whether it be, that the Italians give them the Turks, as the Spaniards give them the Moors, as being both the next Neighbors to each; I take not up-On on me to Determine, only it may be observed, betwixt the Complement of either kind, the Odds is no greater than this, of giving a Nation a Clap, or of laying a brood of Bastards at it's Door.

Though Holland has no Beggers, if the Dutch themfelves are not the greatest Beggers in the World; and Switzerland has no Thieves, if the Swifs who are altogether Soldiers, are not the greatest of Thieves. Yet, I fay, neither the States that are without Beggers, nor the Cantons that are without Thieves, are notwithstates that one or the other, without Gypsies. So as what they want of Beggers and Thieves in point of Antiquity, the Gypsies claim above both, in point of Universality.

But though Gypfies are found in all Christian Countries, yet are they not in all Countries alike; their Nature ture and Genius being diverfe, in proportion to the Countries amongft whom they Stroul; fo that the fame Queftion remains upon them, as is ftarted of the Winds, as Univerfal Travellers as the Gypfies, that it feems a Doubt, Whether they partake more of the Nature of the Countries whence they rife, or of those through which they Pass?

Nor is it also new to meet the Beggers and the Proverbs together, for the Fashion is as old as Plautus, who puts the Proverbs and the Jests in the Mouth of his Slaves. And in the Character of Sancho Pancha, Cervantes has Trod in the same Steps; in the History of Don Quixot, Sancho being distinguished no less by his Proverbs, than his Asse. And between the Slaves and the Beggers, the Difference is no greater, than between Fathers and their Heirs.

If

If fome Terms and Phrafes of better Quality and Fashion, keep so ill Company, as Tag-Rag and Long-Tail; you are to remember, that it is no less then Customary, for Great Persons a broad to hide themselves often in Disguises among the Gypsies; and even the late L. of Rochester among us, when time was, among other 1'rolicks, was not assumed to keep the Gypsies Company.
